CONSCRIPTION SIGN-UP ON WEDNESDAY

Senate Gives Approval To Dykstra As Head Of U. S. Selective Service

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The senate today unanimously confirmed nomination of Clarence A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin, as director of the conscription program under which 16,404,000 American men will register tomorrow.

Dykstra, who is 57, is scheduled to arrive here on Thursday to take his oath of office.

President Roosevelt meantime completed plans to give a five-minute radio talk on conscription at 8 a. m., E. S. T., tomorrow, one hour after registration begins in the east.

State is Ready

SACRAMENTO, (UP)—Preparations for the greatest registration of California men in peacetime history were completed today as selective service officials issued a final appeal for all men between 21 and 36 to appear at local voting precincts tomorrow for draft registration.

Precinct officials will register men between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m. Men may appear at any polling location in the state or nation, if away from home, and the cards will be sorted and returned to the proper draft boards.

Each man registering will receive a number and a national notary from the now-famous fish bowl in Washington will determine which men will be called up for military service. Those drawn in the lottery will receive a 60-question form to answer, which the local draft boards will use to determine which men shall be deferred and which sent to army camps.

The only men in the age groups exempt from registration are those already members of the military services.

Adjutant General R. E. Mittelstaedt estimated that 900,000 men would be eligible for registration in California. He said the 284 draft boards in the state were speeding organization work so the tremendous task of classifying men can begin 24 hours after registration day.

Persons registering will receive a small identification card which should be kept on the person to show proof of compliance with the law.

Army Urgently Needs Horses

Western Remount Office Asks For Names, Addresses Of Owners Of Animals

We have been asked by Headquarters Western Remount Area of the Army Quartermaster Corps, at 72 Third Avenue, San Mateo, to bring to the attention of horse owners among our readers the Army's immediate need of horses.

"It is most urgently requested that your publication bring to the attention of all horse owners and horse dealers in your community that the Army needs horses NOW," says a communication from Major F. W. Koester, officer in charge.

"People owning horses for sale are urged to write this headquarters giving their name and address and the number of horses they have so that we may know how many horses may be secured from any particular section."

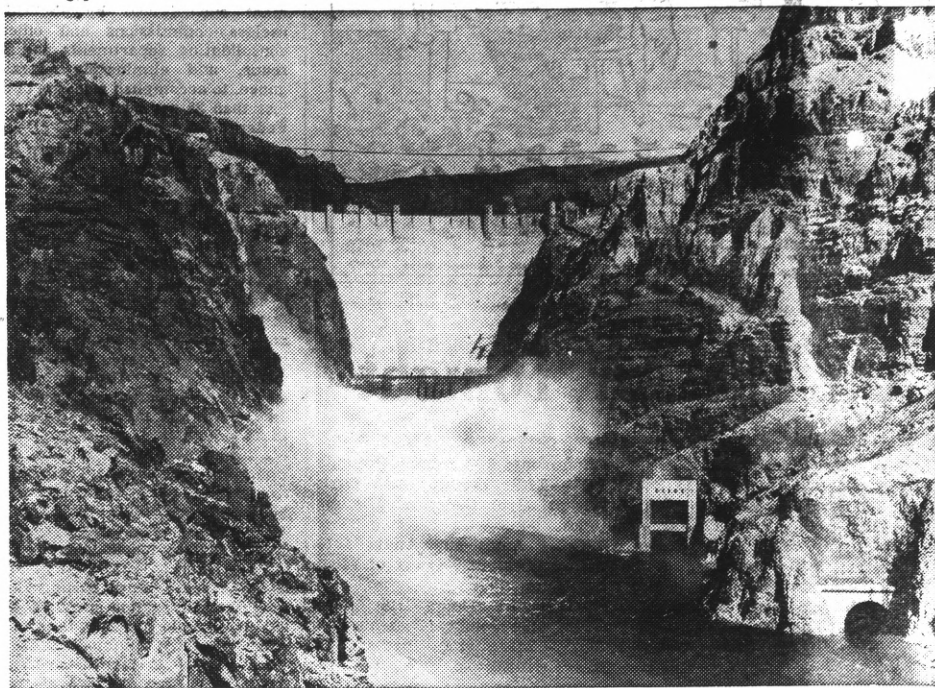

The letter says the Army wants four to eight-year-olds, geldings, weights 1,000 to 1,200 pounds, sound and healthy with good riding qualities and "not too 'drafty' conformation."

Prices range from $150 to $175 depending on the animal and all horses must be shown under saddle.

Those of our readers who have horses for sale will assist the Army by communicating promptly with Headquarters Western Remount Area, 72 Third Street, San Mateo.

C. C. Herbert and Sam Speers left Saturday on a hunting expedition to Idaho.

Man-Made Waterfall at Boulder Dam

This aerial view shows Boulder Dam, at Boulder City, Nev., in operation during a valve test, preparatory to opening the great project for irrigation purposes. 50,000,000 gallons of water spilled from the valves each minute during the test, raising level in the Colorado River one foot.

ANSWERS FOR DRAFTEES

Men, 21 To 36, Register Wednesday In Their Home Precinct Polling Place

WASHINGTON, (UP)—These questions and answers describe the procedure governing the Oct. 16 registration of men covered by the Selective Service law.

Q. Who must register? A. Every man between the ages of 21 and 36 years who is in the continental United States and is not a member of the military services.

Q. If a person is 21 years old on October 16, must he register? A. Yes.

Q. Must he register if he is 36 years old on Oct. 16? A. No. The President's proclamation specifies that registration shall apply to anyone who, on Oct. 16, "has attained the 21st anniversary of the day of his birth and has NOT attained the thirty-sixth anniversary of the day of his birth."

Q. Must aliens in the United States register? A. Yes. All aliens within the age limits residing in the United States must do so.

Q. Where must I register? A. At the nearest registration place established by the local authorities.

Q. Is no one required to inform the individual where his registration place is? No. The responsibility of registering under the law rests with those subject to registration. They must find out where and when to register.

Q. If I am away from home on registration day, do I wait until I get home to register? A. No. Go to the nearest registration place wherever you are. Your card will be sent to your home precinct.

Q. When May I register? A. At any time between 7 o'clock in the morning and 9 at night.

Q. How long will it take me to (Continued on Page 3)

Jack Burrows Married At Stockton

Camino friends have received the announcement of the marriage of Jack Burrows to Miss Nellie Micevich at her home near Stockton, on Saturday evening, October 12. Jack was graduated from the El Dorado County High School in 1935. He is now bookkeeper and office manager for A. Levy and J. Zentner Produce Company, in Reno, Nevada, where the newly married couple are now making their home.

Harold Duden Chosen Officer In Chevalier

City Clerk Harold W. Duden was at San Francisco during the week-end attending a meeting of the Court of Chevalier, jurisdiction of Northern California, and was elected at the meeting to be vice-commander for the organization for the ensuing year.

Forest Supervisor and Mrs. Edwin F. Smith left Tuesday on a visit to several points in the northern part of the state, during which Supervisor Smith will attend various conferences on official business.

U. S. Leadership Heading Toward War, Col. Lindbergh Charges

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh charged in a radio speech last night that the present leadership of the United States—in which, he said, the people have lost confidence—is leading the nation into war.

In an address entitled "a plea for American independence," Lindbergh appealed for election of leaders on Nov. 5 "who will lead us to strength and peace, rather than to weakness and war."

The independence and destiny of America "were never more in jeopardy than they are today," Lindbergh said, asserting "what we lack today is the type of leadership that made us a great nation; the type that turned adversity and hardship into virility and success."

"No one doubts that we are in the midst of a world crisis. No one denies that our defenses are weak, that our debt is great, that dissatisfaction is rising among us. We do not question the need for rearmament, for freedom, for a better economic system. What we do question is the leadership that has brought these conditions upon us."

"We have alienated the most powerful military nations of both Europe and Asia, at a time when we ourselves are unprepared for action, and while the people of our nation are overwhelmingly opposed to war."

He insisted that the nation does not need "untold thousands of military aircraft" unless it intends to wage war abroad. He said the maximum needed was a "thoroughly modern and efficient air corps, trained, equipped and maintained for the specific mission of American defense."

"Adequate defenses does not necessitate this alarm and confusion," he went on. "With intelligent leadership, we could have built an impregnable defense for America without disturbing seriously our national life and industry. . . . But today while we listen to talk of aircraft, guns, and battleships, couching in figures so astronomical that they compared only to our national debt, we find ourselves in confusion at home, and under ridicule abroad."

"The United States has started negotiations with key south American countries for a diplomatic and military agreement, almost approximating an alliance, for total defense of the western hemisphere against aggression, an authoritative source said today."

Under the proposed agreement naval, airplane and army bases would be made available for mutual defense among the republics of the western hemisphere.

So far-reaching are negotiations, according to authoritative information, that they would provide a successful for new bases for the construction of which, it was indicated, American financial assistance would be extended.

According to information here, the United States seeks to negotiate a diplomatic and military agreement with the majority of the South American countries which—(1) would bring up to potential needs the defense facilities of the countries concerned, and (2) would place these facilities at the disposal of not only the United States but all the American republics for any common defense action which might become necessary.

Two From Fallen Leaf Chapter At Convention

Fallen Leaf Chapter No. 90, O. E. S. of Placerville, is being represented at the Grand Chapter of the order, in session this week at Sacramento, by two delegates, Mrs. Ethel Van Vleck and Miss Louisiana Schnell.

Friends have received a card from Mrs. Elizabeth Harris, who is visiting with friends and relatives in the middle west and eastern states. The message states: "Have been to Windsor, Canada, for a few days. Chicago and Detroit are fine cities. Leaving on October 16 for Niagara Falls—from there to New York and Pennsylvania. My niece has been accompanying me on some of the trips. Give my best wishes to all my friends."

HEAVIER RAIDS BLAST LONDON AND BERLIN

Balkans Jittery But Quiet As Red Army Paper Notes Need For Readiness

MOSCOW, (UP)—The Soviet army newspaper Red Star said today that the "tense international situation" requires that Russia maintain her army "fully mobilized and in readiness."

The TASS official Russian news agency issued a communique declaring that reports that the Soviet Union was advised by Germany of the dispatch of German troops to Rumania are not correct.

The communique was issued in the form of a denial of newspaper dispatches which had asserted that Russia had been advised by Germany of the movement of troops to Rumania.

By UNITED PRESS

British airmen smashed at Germany with one of the heaviest attacks of the war last night and early today while Nazi bombers also pounded away at London with an endless chain attack.

The Royal Air Force hurled a great number of bombers into the night assault on Germany. Squadrons hit at Berlin where the air ministry reported they attacked important military objectives.

German accounts of the British assault on the German capital were sparse.

The Germans claimed they shot down three of the attack planes but the British admitted that four were missing.

Berlin was not the only objective of the RAF. A concentrated attack was made upon the great industrial plants which provide Germany with oil and gasoline.

The invasion coast got another beating.

PIONEER DAY KEPT SUNDAY

Native Daughters Hosts At Dinner And Program At Merryman's Resort

An attendance of approximately ninety, including fifteen pioneers of the county, was recorded Sunday at Merryman's resort when Marguerite Parlor No. 12, N. D. G. W., held its annual Pioneer Day observance with the assistance of Placerville Parlor No. 9, N. S. G. W.

This was the second consecutive year in which the affair had been held at Merryman's and members of the hostess organization expressed their appreciation and thanks to Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Merryman whom they said, had generously granted the use of their place for the dinner and program without charge, both last year and this year.

The dinner was pot-luck and was followed by a program arranged under the supervision of Mrs. Pearl Tinney and featuring the appearance of the Pioneer Quadrille Club in exhibition old-time dances, Mr. and Mrs. Merryman, in old-time costume, contributed an exhibition dance to the program.

There was an especially interesting program of talks including remarks by Miss Mary O'Donnell and John Cleese.

John Sellich, of Camino, favored the group with some old-time violin music and Mrs. Edna Harris, also one of the honored guests, contributed a piano number.

Speakers included Mrs. Annie Vennetitz, as acting president of Marguerite Parlor, and Henry S. Lyon, Grand President of the Native Sons, representing the Grand Parlor and Placerville Parlor.

The group sang old-time songs and concluded the afternoon dancing and visiting, all present voting the occasion another success in the series of pioneer county reunions sponsored each year by Marguerite Parlor.

Walter Leavitt Notes Birthday At Dinner

Several friends gathered at the Walter P. Leavitt home at Five-Mile Terrace Monday night to join the family in celebrating Mr. Leavitt's birthday anniversary. A dinner was served at seven, following which the group found pleasures at games, dancing and conversation. The table was beautifully decorated in the Halloween motif, with a huge centerpiece of fruit.

Those present included: Mr. and Mrs. John Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Hendricks, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Meadows, Mr. and Mrs. Mance H. Vaught, James McKinstry, Mrs. Jessie Flint, of Fair Oaks, and Mr. and Mrs. Leavitt and two children, Clyde and Sonny.

EXTRA VENIRE SUMMONED IN CRASH CASE

One To Be Chosen To Replace Mrs. Spicer In Superior Court Jury

The condition of Mrs. Florence Spicer, taken suddenly ill Monday, continues "about the same," it was reported by her attending physician at Placerville Sanatorium Tuesday. The doctor said Mrs. Spicer will remain at the hospital "at least three or four days."

Threatened indefinite delay in the resumption of the trial of Ralph McElyea, on charges of negligent homicide, was eliminated Tuesday morning in Superior Court when a supplementary venire of seven was issued in the case.

From the list of seven, attorneys will hope to select a juror to replace Mrs. Florence Spicer in the jury box in the trial in which the presentation of testimony is nearing conclusion.

Mrs. Spicer, who was one of the jurors in the trial, was taken suddenly ill Monday and when court convened, further hearing in the matter was continued until Thursday morning at nine o'clock.

Tuesday morning, it appeared to the court that there might be some doubt as to whether Mrs. Spicer could resume her place as a juror on Thursday, and attorneys in the case stipulated that a supplementary venire of seven be issued.

The extra venire includes George D. Threikell, Merle Cannon, Charles F. Anderson, Joseph G. Hearn, Frank H. Morey, A. O. Brown and Henry M. Cullers. These are being notified to appear in the court room at nine o'clock Thursday morning for possible service as jurors.

Hi-Jinks For H. S. Girls

Hallowe'en Party Is Planned By League On Friday Evening

High school girls and their mothers will meet at the school auditorium Friday evening, October 25th, for a Hi-Jinks arranged by the Girls' League, which will be in the nature of a Hallowe'en party.

Doings will start at 7:30 o'clock, and all girls will be expected to attend masked.

There will be prizes for the most original, funniest and cutest costumes and an entertainment program to which each class in the school will contribute, with a prize for the best stunt.

In addition, the committee in charge reports, there will be fortune telling booths, bobbing for apples and other Hallowe'en features, with appropriate refreshments to top off the evening.

SIX YOUTHS SLUG GUARD AND FLEE PRESTON REFORMATORY

IONE, (UP)—Six youths clubbed and overpowered a guard and escaped from the Preston School of Industry last night, officials of the juvenile reformatory announced this morning.

The guard, James Behrens, was attacked with a club as he unlocked the door to the sleeping quarters of the six youths, who overpowered him and made their escape.

The escapees were received at the Preston school from Fresno, Imperial, Kings, Sacramento, San Bernardino and San Francisco counties.

3 From El Dorado Are At O. E. S. Convention

Three members of El Dorado Chapter No. 449, O. E. S., are in Sacramento in attendance at the annual Grand Chapter, O. E. S., in California. The group of delegates included Adeline Strickland, district deputy grand matron; and Mrs. Emma Hodgkins and Mrs. Mary Perschke, representing El Dorado Chapter.

Doris Wudell was received into Tau Kappa Kappa at College of the Pacific during the rush season just concluded.

Marriage Money

By JANE LITTELL

SYNOPSIS

Pike Arno, out of a job and not trying particularly hard to find one, is befriended by Leona Cheeny, a young New York stenographer. She is cautious about financial matters, and although Pike is urging her to marry him, she refuses until he gets a job or until her own meagre funds have been sufficiently supplemented.

She overhears some girls at the office telling how they eke out their maintenance by acting as co-respondents in divorce cases. Leona learns the name of one of the lawyers by whom they are employed, and summoning up all her courage, goes to his office for an interview.

If only she could earn a few hundred dollars for a "nest egg" she could then marry Pike.

Burgess, the lawyer, is doubtful whether this wide-eyed shabbily dressed girl, could ever affect the worldly guile necessary in cases of this kind. Gradually, the youthful beauty of the girl dawns upon his consciousness and he envisions her properly garbed.

Outside the office she hears him discussing her merits with Chet Harknet, who is seeking the divorce. They agree that, in evening clothes of the mode, the girl would be beautiful enough to make any wife jealous.

Harknet engages her and tells her to report that that evening to his hotel, where an evening gown and ermine wrap will be awaiting her.

She hurries back to Tenth Avenue to cook dinner for Pike.

CHAPTER THREE

And half an hour later, she was standing outside the Hotel Perique so awed by its cold, expensive looking dignity that it was another half hour before she summoned up nerve to go in.

"I've got to," she told herself desperately. "I said I would, and I've got to. Pike'll be mad at me, anyway, and I might as well."

She asked the uniformed door man timidly where she would find Mr. Harknet, and he told her to ask at the desk. There they asked what she wanted and telephoned to tell Chet she was there. And after that, a boy led her to the elevator with many a snooty glance at the shabby brown coat.

"Wait till I come out," she thought belligerently. "All dressed up in ermine and velvet. I'll bet they act different."

A uniformed maid met her at the fortieth floor, led her to a big, luxurious bedroom, undressed her and plopped her into a bathtub so big she thought she could almost swim in it. Then she wrapped the girl from head to foot in a great woolly bath towel, led her out to a dressing table and rubbed cold cream onto her face. It was the first facial Leona had ever had, and she watched the supple fingers that worked over her face in amazement. Such a beautifully clear mirror, too. Then came powder and a tiny touch of rouge, lip stick and eye shadow. Apparently rich girls never even powdered their own noses!

Then the maid got down on her knees and slipped cobwebby stockings over the slender legs, and brought out boxes of slippers.

"Mr. Harknet forgot to ask what size shoes, but we'll find some that fit you," said the maid. And the very smallest ones did. Leona felt exactly like Cinderella.

Then the tiniest little pair of tight-fitting panties, and that was all the underwear she was supposed to wear! She was agast at that! But she forgot all about the lack of underwear when the maid went to a closet and brought out a white velvet dress.

When she got into the dress, she saw why there hadn't been any underwear except that tiny pair of panties. The dress hadn't any back at all!

"Oh, I couldn't!" she gasped, when she discovered her naked back. "I couldn't—possibly!"

"Don't be silly," snapped the maid, who was pretty proud of the way she had turned this little brown sparrow into a glowing bird of paradise. "Any dress that costs three hundred and fifty dollars is perfect."

"Did—did this cost—that much?" asked Leona in a little awed whisper.

"It did."

"Well—maybe—if I kept the coat on—," said Leona, still in that awed little whisper.

The maid let her try the coat on to see how she would look, and Leona stared at the beauty in the long mirror as if she were seeing a stranger. She was beautiful! Mr. Burgess was right. She did look like a wild daisy. Oh, it was wonderful to be beautiful! Even if it was only a sort of Cinderella experience. It was wonderful to know that if you had the money to buy clothes like these, you could be that beautiful. And pretty soon she'd have a thousand dollars—

But that thousand dollars was for Pike, she reminded herself sharply, as she let the maid take the coat.

"Without the coat?" she asked, with a flash of apprehension in her brown eyes.

"Come on out into the middle of the room and let me get a good look at you. You're beautiful."

"Sure. His nibs wants to see how you look."

"Oh! He's waiting. Well—," But the maid wasn't waiting. She had opened the door and stood aside.

"Run along. He's alone. Nothing's going to hurt you."

Chet Harknet had heard that door open and he turned back from the window across the room to see just how bad it was going to be. He was remembering that timorous little brown wren of a girl he had seen in the lawyer's office. And what he saw made one eyebrow quirk up at the outer end and his eyes changed their expression entirely.

"By jove!" he said softly. And again, "By jove!"

Then he strode across the room for closer inspection.

Leona had slid away from the door and was standing with her disgracefully naked back against the wall. Not the best pose in the world for displaying a three hundred and fifty dollar gown. She was scared, that was plain to Chet.

He held out a hand to her with a quick smile. What a child she was!

"Come on out into the middle of the room and let me get a good look at you. You're beautiful!"

She gave him the tips of her cold little fingers and let him draw her away from the wall.

"Now turn around," he smiled.

"Oh, I— I couldn't!" she quavered, big eyes. "This dress hasn't got any—any back!"

"But you've got one very much worth displaying, haven't you?" he asked easily.

"I—I don't know," she said dubiously, trying to look down over her shoulder and see.

"Let me look. Turn around."

But she only shook her head obstinately.

"Look here, young woman," said Chet, suddenly exasperated. "do you think the most famous dressmaker in town would make a dress without a back if there was anything indecent about it?"

"It—it isn't that. I—I've seen dresses without backs in the movies. It's just—just that I never—"

"Now listen," he began gently, "we are going up to the roof for dinner and then we're going to the theater. And hundreds of people will see your back. If you're going to be so darned naive about it we might as well call the whole deal off here and now. This is just the beginning, you know, and the object of the whole affair is to make people talk about us and give my wife trumped-up grounds for divorce. I thought you knew what you were doing."

There was panic in the brown eyes that stared back at him. She couldn't lose that thousand dollars when it seemed so near. Where would she ever get another chance like this? She was being silly and she knew it, but she did feel so awfully naked.

Chet let her think it out. He reached for a cigarette, picked up a lighter from the table beside him, and then he saw through a cloud of smoke that she had risen to her feet.

Slowly she turned around and around again, her hands spread like a mannequin's.

"There!" she said.

"Thank you," said Chet. "Now, shall we go up to dinner?"

He stood up and offered her his arm. Slowly she went to him and slid her hand into the crook of his elbow.

"When people are looking, do you think you could pretend that you are very, very fond of me?" he asked. "Let's see you try."

But the big pansy brown eyes were awfully shy as she tried. Then Chet had an idea. He telephoned for a waiter, and then he said:

"You run back into the bedroom and strut around in front of that long mirror until you see just how lovely you really are. I don't think you've had a fair chance to get acquainted with your new self. Any other girl as lovely as you are, would be strutting like a peacock."

He got her into the bedroom just as the waiter arrived.

"You've got some of my champagne cooling, haven't you? Well, serve me a bottle here, right away. Hurry!"

That would do it, he was sure. But he cursed Mr. Burgess for getting him this sort of a girl while he waited. Already he was worrying about what the experience would do to a girl like Leona. She was so darned innocent—and ignorant. She'd probably manage to make a fool of him. One of those hard-boiled experienced co-respondents would have been better. At least that sort of woman would have known how to play the game.

Darn the New York divorce laws, anyway! Darn Christine! Darn everything! This thing was going to require more patience than his riddled nerves would permit.

He gulped two glasses of the champagne before he knocked on the bedroom door.

Leona opened it and stood before him, one hand on her hip in a little defiant attitude, her lips smiling tremulously and her eyes half closed.

"A perfect picture," he complimented her.

"Do I really look nice? I was trying to," said Leona delightedly. "I thought if I pretended I was someone who was used to dresses without backs and—and everything—I could forget I was just me all dressed up. Let's play I'm a movie star, and—and—you're someone I'm in love with."

"Fine!" said Chet heartily. "And let's play this carbonated cider is champagne. Let me get you a glass."

"Oh, let's!" she cried gratefully. They stood smiling at each other, their glasses in their hands, quite at ease, now that they were playing Let's Pretend.

"Here's to luck," he said, raising his glass.

"And health and wealth and happiness," she added, taking a deep draft of the champagne. All that panic had parched her mouth and she was thirsty.

"It's just like pop, isn't it?" she asked. "Only better."

And she finished her glass.

Gravely Chet poured her another. Two wouldn't do her any harm. Just pep her up and make her forget her shyness.

"I was awfully thirsty," she said simply, looking around for a place to put her glass. Then "Oh—oh! How funny it makes your stomach feel! All sort of warm and tingly. And am I hungry!"

Chet had begun to feel better, too, with two glasses of champagne under his belt. And he laughed down at her.

"Let's finish the bottle," he suggested. And they did.

So they were really very gay when they got into the elevator to go up to dinner and Leona had forgotten completely about her bare back. And all the way down the long aisle between the tables to the one table that was reserved for them she clung to Chet's arm and chattered as if she had known him all her life.

"Isn't the music marvelous!" she cried as they edged their way around the dance floor. "Couldn't we dance—once?"

And then she was in his arms, bare back and all, and they were dancing—floating, it seemed to the girl, to the most gorgeous music she had ever heard.

"I'm so happy it—it seems almost wicked," she told him, big eyes dancing, silver slippers feet twinkling. "I had no idea it made so much difference to be rich. Why, if I were home now, I'd be frying pork chops for my boy friend over a little electric plate and wishing that cooking didn't smell up my room so. And here I am, pretending to be a rich girl, and poor Pike is probably eating at some lunch wagon."

Pledge Broken

The Democratic platform of 1932 declared: "We advocate an immediate and drastic reduction of government expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolidating departments and bureaus, and eliminating extravagance, to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of Federal Government."

In the light of this pledge, let's look at the record.

Federal expenditures have increased under President Roosevelt from $3,794,000,000 in 1933 to $9,142,000,000 in 1939.

The total Federal expenditures increased by 141 per cent from 1933 to 1939. Largely thru an expansion of boards, commissions, personnel, and functions, the ordinary expenditures were increased 56 per cent from 1933 to 1939. Total emergency and relief expenditures were increased by 374 per cent from 1933 to 1939.

During the period of the New Deal, more than 75 new government agencies have been created, employing many thousands.

Reason for Surplus

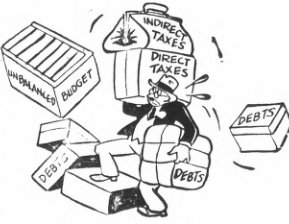

From July 1, 1937, through June 30, 1939, the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation spent $30,479,000 in disposing of surpluses of 20 American farm commodities which were subject to tariff concessions under New Deal reciprocal trade agreements. During the same period we imported from foreign countries these same commodities to the value of $92,298,000.

Loss in Pork Products

America sold to foreign countries 84,175,000 pounds of hams, shoulders, bacon and sides in 1932. For 1938 our foreign sale of these products of American farms was only 63,559,000 pounds, despite New Deal trade agreements.

"Government employment has increased nearly 100 per cent. Government expenditures have increased nearly 200 per cent, now amounting to over nine billion dollars. Government borrowing has increased over 150 per cent. Here is a real political boom. Here is one activity in which the enterpriser has become both rich and powerful. But all this has been accomplished at the expense of the people, who have paid for it not only in taxes but in the losses which their enterprises have suffered as a result of this government activity."

Hidden Taxes

More than 22 per cent of the total national income is taken by Federal, State and local tax collectors. Even though a person does not pay taxes directly, taxes nevertheless are passed on to him hidden in higher prices for the things he has to buy. A person with an income of $20 a month pays indirect taxes of $9.67 a month, or 12 per cent of his income. One with an income of $150 a month pays $19.10 monthly in hidden taxes, or 12.7 per cent of his income. This is in addition to taxes paid directly.

COMPARE

with any Envelope and you will readily see the superiority of Mail-Well construction

Notice in the above illustration the entirely different construction of the two envelope flaps. Figure 1 shows the old style flap. Figure 2 shows the "Mail-Well" flap which has been designed to protect the contents of the envelope. The outstanding advantages of this special high shoulder flap are:

It allows adequate room for heavy gumming at the corners, the envelope's weakest point, where added protection is most needed.

It assures safe delivery of the contents even when stuffed to capacity.

It gives easy access to the letter opener although sealed nearly airtight.

You can best judge the merits when you have a Mail-Well and any other type envelope in your hands. Let us show you samples—a comparison will readily convince you of the added protection given your mail by Mail-Well envelopes. You will be under no obligation to order.

*All envelopes ride on the flap edge when going through the sorting and cancelling machines at the Post Office.

Upon this having been accomplished, or in any event when the jury is declared completed, the testimony of witnesses in the entire trial thus far will be read for the benefit of the new juror, by the short hand reporter.

This proceeding, it is estimated, will occupy most of the day on Thursday, and upon the completion of the reading of the testimony to date the trial will proceed with further testimony by defense witnesses.

McElyea was charged with negligent homicide in an indictment based on a true bill found by the Grand Jury following its investigation of a wreck at Lake Tahoe on August 2 between a car driven by McElyea and a bicycle ridden by Enos Stredback, in which the latter received injuries, which, allegedly, caused his death three days later.

JACK-IN-THE-BOX "SCREWDRIIVER" — Pop! — he's out of the door into traffic — so much simpler than sliding out on the curb side. "Screwdrivers" cause 25% of all Stop-and-Go. Remember, your engine uses 3 times as much gasoline in low and second gears as in high — when a "Screwdriver" or "Screwjockey" brings you to a needless stop, you pay.

SHARE-THE-ROAD CLUB WARS ON TRAFFIC PESTS

More than 7,000,000 motorists have joined Shell's crusade against "Screwdrivers" and "Screwjockies." Take a stand against these pests who cause 35% of all fuel-wasting Stop-and-Go — join the Share-the-Road Club. Any Shell dealer will enroll you... give you free the day-and-night emblem.

SLEEPWALKING "SCREWDRIIVER" — Vacant stare and measured tread — all he needs is a nightgown! "Screwjockies" — heedless pedestrians — cause 10% of all Stop-and-Go, to say nothing of needless accidents.

These two Shell gasolines have, each in its price class, the highest Road Performance Rating in Shell history... faster starting, improved anti-knock, more power and go in all gears, at all times!

MR. MASON SEES CHANGE IN NAZI AIR ATTACK AS MADE NECESSARY BY BRITISH TACTICS IN DEFENSE

By J. W. T. MASON
United Press War Expert

British army engineers and unemployed working men who are beginning to clean up London's blitzkrieg debris should be able to continue their work without serious bombing interruptions because the Germans have been forced to moderate the intensity of their air offensive. Due to excessive losses the heavy mass bomber formations, previously used to strafe Britain, are now giving way to individual or small groups of attack planes with much less striking power.

This change in tactics has become especially evident through announcements that the German fighter planes now are being equipped with devices for doing the bombing themselves. Previously, the principal purpose of the fighter planes was to protect the great bombers dropping bombs of five hundred to two thousand pounds.

These bomber squadrons required two to three times the number of fighter planes to guard them, for if left to themselves they were helpless against the speedy British fighters. Owing to the initiative of Lord Beaverbrook the British fighter planes were instructed to evade the German fighters as far as possible and concentrate against the bombers. As a result until the change in the German tactics, more than seventy-five per cent of the Nazi planes destroyed over Great Britain were of the bombing type.

Now there are few heavy bombers being sent over Britain in daytime raids, though they continue to be employed at night when darkness affords them natural protection. The German fighter planes are carrying most of the bombs for daylight operations. The capacity of the fighters, however, is used principally for armament, usually allowing only small bombs to be carried.

Thus the damage and the casualties resulting from the German raiders have begun to dwindle. In order to try to make up for this decrease in offensive power the Germans have lately been endeavoring to dive low and machine-gun civilians in city streets, but land defenses make this process hazardous. To the present it has been rarely successful.

But by flying individually or in small formations and by using their fighter planes as bombers the Germans have been able to cut their losses. Recent British announcements of the number of enemy air-planes destroyed have shown a considerable decline, which applies too to British plane casualties.

Before the Germans were compelled to adopt a policy of greater caution, their mass attacks were successfully countered by comparatively few British fighters, moving against the enemy bombers and evading the fighter escorts. Thus the British numerical inferiority in planes was not seriously felt.

Now with the Germans diversifying their attacks the problem of the British defense is somewhat more complicated. The British must use more planes comparatively than before, because they are compelled to attack the German fighters that now carry the bombs. Too, since the encounters occur in more places than formerly, it is necessary for more British squadrons to operate.

The advantage to the Germans is that they are losing fewer planes, while the British are suffering less damage and there are fewer civilian losses. Too, parachute skill recently has become much more efficient, which is an additional help to the British; their rescued airmen are good for further combat, but German parachutists become prisoners of war.

Mastery over the air never can be gained by the Germans through their changed plan of operations, which they call "hammer blows." Hitler seems to have abandoned his objective outright, and is concentrating on wearing down British morale by comparatively minor blows, which, however, show no sign of success.

Ecuador Wants Increased Trade With U. S.

(The following letter was received from the secretary of Sociedad Panamericana de I. T. Casilla 315, Quito, Republica del Ecuador, Sud America, to whom the inquiries suggested may be addressed.—Ed.)

Dear Friend of Latin-America: Ecuador, land of peace, harmony and industry, wants increased trade with the United States. Here the South American Andes rival the Swiss Alps and beckon the North American tourist.

In full accord with the international policies of the United States of North America, "my simpatie" as the Ecuadorians say, and with a heartfelt desire to increase friendly trade relations, Ecuador bids for favor and for consideration of her products in North American markets.

Coffee, Tagua (Ivory Nut), Cacao and Coca, Hardwood, Mountain Wool, Chinchona (quinine bark), Balssa and a host of hand-made, fascinating articles for the individual as well as for the trade, comprise the products of Ecuador.

Ecuador likewise offers tour advantages of highly favorable money exchange, excellent hotel accommodations, unsurpassed scenery and a people that are truly friendly and hospitable towards their "cousins of the North."

Pamphlets have been prepared for distribution, not only among the firms or business houses of the United States, but also designed to interest the individual man and woman.

This organization wishes to send to every interested person or firm: First, a list of Ecuadorian merchandise and trade offerings. Second: Ecuadorian stamps of the latest issue. Third: an Ecuadorian pocket-piece coin; Fourth: a packet of good-will seeds of the beautiful Ecuadorian "Passion Flower" which may be pot-grown in North America.

This material to be mailed, first class, in a sealed envelope to each applicant.

It costs only a 3c stamp to mail a letter to Ecuador from the United States, time consumed each way is approximately 18 days. Air Mail requires but 3 to 4 days, costs 30c per half ounce. Applicants for the Ecuadorian good-will offerings listed herein, are requested to enclose ten cents in coin to assist in defraying postage, cost of material to be sent, and handling charges.

TOM MIX FUNERAL TO BE WEDNESDAY AT HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, (U) — Tom Mix was back in Hollywood today, where his tall sombrero and cowboy attire were a familiar sight, to await his last personal appearance.

The body of the famed 60-year-old cowboy star, killed Saturday in an automobile accident at Florence, Ariz., was brought to a Hollywood chapel where it was to lay in state Tuesday, dressed in the Ranger's coat and white breeches so well-known in the film colony.

From 10 a. m. until 10 p. m. Monday, the body lay in state. After Masonic funeral services Wednesday, he will be buried at Forest Lawn Memorial Park, the resting place of Rudolph Valentino, Douglas Fairbanks and Jean Harlow.

OPAL - The October Stone

OPAL, combines every shade of the rainbow in one stone. The Roman Senator, Nonius, preferred exile rather than sell his Opal ring to Marc Anthony for Cleopatra—Queen Victoria was especially proud of her opal collection. The false "unlucky" idea came from a careless reading of a Sir Walter Scott novel—but the discovery of black opals in Australia in 1902 stemmed the tide of this erroneous superstition. Most opals, both white and black, come from Australia today. The whites are still called Hungarian (name of the type) though mines in Hungary exhausted in 1880s—"black" or "Australian" opals, are those whose "body" color are anything but white (or near white). Mexican opals are quite transparent but of any body color. "Nevada opals" are "glassy," brittle type.

Frosh Frolic
The freshmen were officially ushered into school life by the sophomores at the usual dignified (?) Freshman Reception, held on Friday afternoon. Some 173 frosh were paraded across the stage in their costumes, and the boy's winner was a fellow dressed in diapers, while the female lead wore a pale pink creation that defied description. — we kinda admired the girl in the barrel and the fellows in bathing suits—especially the gaudy orange one—bathing suit, I mean. Karl Herrmann looked a bit beneath the dignity of a class president in a trouser-less dress suit. Georgia Crystal took top honors in a balloon fanning contest, and they're still trying to find out who won a tricycle relay. The freshmen, by dint of a team spirit we didn't believe they had, pulled the much heavier sophomores all over the floor in the tug of war. If the student body would yell for the Cougar footballers like they did for the frosh, maybe they'd start pushing people around, too.

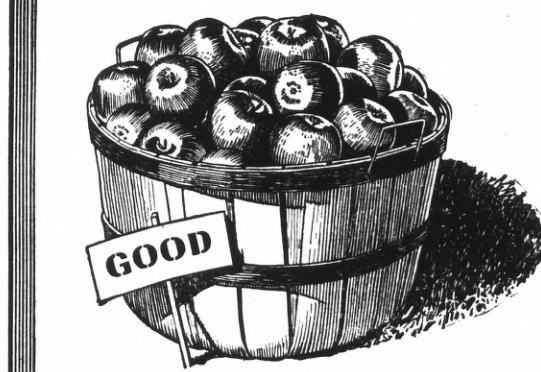

Bubbling and Bubbling
Sophomore President Bill Johnson got the worst of it in a soda-drinking contest, all because he handled the bottle too roughly. The bottle objected rather strenuously, spraying rather strenuously, spraying pop all over our hero.

John Weidman and Jerry Davis head the tennis ladder, but they'll have to go some to hold their positions against all the good men and true who covet that number one spot. A lot of last year's letter men are returning, and Coach Ramsey has hopes for a winning team despite the loss of last year's Mother Lode Champ, Wally Meyers. Barbara Long and Floris Gregory, both of whom have had previous tournament experience, and Edith Young, the school's only fourth year award possibility in the game, serve to make the battle in-

WOULD YOU CUT DOWN THE APPLE TREE?

You'll probably find a few bad apples in a bushel of good ones. That's the way it is with beer retailing in America.

There are hundreds of thousands of wholesome, law-abiding beer retail establishments that sell good beer—the refreshing, appetizing beverage of moderation. At the same time, there is a handful of undesirable, anti-social taverns. Unfortunately, these few outlaw establishments bring discredit to the entire beer industry.

To protect your right to drink good beer, the Brewing Industry wants such anti-social retailers eliminated entirely. It has instituted a "clean-up or close-up" program—now in effect in some states and being extended.

We'd like you to know about this socially important program. May we tell you about it in an interesting free booklet? Write: United Brewers Industrial Foundation, 19 East 40th Street, New York, N. Y.

LOTUS NOTES

We have been told the ladies are much put out and take it as an insult about the piece in the Democrat of October 3, on apple pie. We did not mean any harm whatever but the poetry came into our cranium at the time so we wrote it up. We ask our Grange ladies to please accept our apology and we assure them that it will never happen again and will say ladies—apple pie is alright.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicolai came down from Oroville and spent the weekend at the Blodgett home visiting with Dudley Stevenson and wife. They returned Sunday evening.

The weather the past two weeks has been very good with a few partly cloudy days. The mercury ran from 68 to 90 degrees which was the warmest day on Saturday last. A trace of rain fell on Oct. 2.

The writer took in the pioneer dinner at Merryman's last Sunday, given by the Native Daughters, and enjoyed it, the old time music and dancing—like years ago. Miss Mary O'Donnell gave a very interesting talk as did many others. And as for the dinner given by the ladies—it could not be excelled.

H. Daniels of South San Francisco was a visitor in our town last Friday. He has just purchased one of the lots from Angie DeLory at Coloma and plans to build a home there for himself and wife.

Mrs. Florence Hines and a lady friend took the day off from household duties last Friday and drove over to Auburn to do some shopping and see the Placer county town. C. Morrill, field representative of the installment credit and loan department for the Bank of America, was a caller in our town from his Sacramento office on Thursday of last week.

Again we wish to mention not to forget the whist card party planned for Saturday night, October 19, at Gold Trail Grange hall. Lots of prizes for high scores. We will look for our Editor and his wife, also Cecil Barker and wife, and others from Placerville to be with us on that night and each take home a nice prize with them.

Again we much regret the death of our old friend, Mrs. Matilda Williamson, who died in Placerville on Thursday of last week and was laid to rest beside her husband in the Jayhawk cemetery on Saturday. Mrs. Williamson had passed four score years—her husband preceded her in death on Feb. 27, 1932, over eight years ago. One by one our old friends and pioneers are passing to the other world.

Wednesday night of last week the Gold Trail Grange at their regular meeting initiated and conferred the first and second degrees on five new members: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Geoglein, Harry Chadwick, Mrs. Barbara Parks and Lester Martin.

Mrs. Hilda Sears and son Billy are in Oakland for a few days, the guests of her mother, Mrs. Annie Hennings and family.

The ladies of Salmon Falls have formed a sewing club and plan to meet every other Wednesday at the home of some member. Mrs. John Sandor was the hostess Wednesday afternoon of last week. The ladies all brought their knitting and sewing and before returning to their homes Mrs. Sandor served a delicious luncheon on the lawn. The tables were spread for eleven persons. Those present besides the hostess and her sister, Mrs. Otis Phillips, were Mrs. Nan Kelly, Mrs. Frank Brooks, Mrs. John Sattler, Mrs. Hilda Sears, Mrs. Will Miller, Misses Myrtle Burnett, Annie Fredericks, DeLores Brooks and Ruth Sears.

There is an average attendance of about thirty at Sunday School held at Live Oak school weekly.

Charles Anderson made a trip with the J. R. Watkins salesman to the chrome mine at Negro Hill on Thursday of last week.

Fresno county was recently designated a modified accredited bovine tuberculosis-free area.

Two dairymen of Kings county were fined recently for violation of the t. b. testing laws.

Berlin, London Heavily Bombed

believed by some observers to be the severest of the war. Bombing started last evening and went on all night. Daylight brought no end to the attack.

Germans used a new type of combination explosive and incendiary bomb. These were dropped in containers that exploded in the air, scattering the bombs over a wide area.

At one time during the night a rooftop watcher counted 20 fires and official reports said that bombs fell in 56 areas of the metropolis.

The Balkans appeared quieter but still jittery. Bucharest believed that 10 German army divisions—about 150,000 troops—are scheduled eventually for arrival in Rumania. About a third of them, it was estimated, have come in.

Turkey felt easier about the situation, reportedly because of moral assurances from Russia and indications that Russia would not permit the Axis to control the Dardanelles.

A second federal camp for migrant workers is being built east of Porterville, Tulare county.
